PMA is offering two safety programs back-to-back in Cleveland, OH, on September 17-18, 2013, for safety professionals who wish to take advantage of attending both events.

The OSHA Compliance Seminar will feature presentations from PMA’s OSHA attorney Doug Ehlke, Jim Barrett of Link Systems and Julie Weis from OSHA. Company and plant management as well as safety, production and maintenance supervisors will benefit from attending this program.

The Safety Professionals Roundtable offers an invaluable opportunity to network with industry peers and participate in roundtable discussions on key safety-related topics. Anyone responsible for developing and implementing internal safety and health efforts will want to take advantage of this opportunity to meet face-to-face with peers who share similar responsibilities and challenges.

“Critical information was presented that could save a company thousands of dollars. Well worth the price of attending.”

Lockout/Tagout Run Amuck
Jim Barrett, Link Systems
Lockout/tagout is one of the most cited regulations by OSHA. Not only are OSHA citations for lockout/tagout for die setting and tool changes increasing, but there have been numerous citations for tasks that must be done relative to machinery that are impossible to do with power off and are based on misinterpretations of the regulation. OSHA has recently issued citations regarding threading and tailout of stock into progressive dies for automatic coil fed presses. Other examples of citations for machinery tasks where LO/TO is not possible will be given. Alternative energy control methods for die changes and potential information that could influence OSHA to remove citations for threading and tailout of coils into progressive dies will be discussed.

OSHA Update for the Metalforming Industry
Julie Weis, OSHA
- Latest agency enforcement statistics
- Most cited standards for the metalforming industry
- National Emphasis Programs, Local Emphasis Programs and how they can affect your company
- Brief review of employee training requirements for GHS, due date 12/1/2013
- Management leadership regarding the safety and health program at your company

Take-Home Materials: Attendees receive numerous handouts to use as a comprehensive research tool for years to come.
